RAM Enterprises, Inc.

We all watch our money, especially in these harshest of economic climates, which means that we're sometimes forced to sacrifice quality for affordability. We can get away with this for most things, making due with cheaper alternatives, maybe not even really noticing the difference in quality.

With families spending more and more time entertaining themselves at home, however, this is one area in which we shouldn't be willing to sacrifice quality... the structural integrity and security of our homes should be a big priority. But is it possible to find the type of quality work we need without having to look for a second job to pay for it? Or is the only other option settling for less quality work? With RAM Enterprises, one doesn't need to sacrifice quality for affordability. With RAM Enterprises, you get both.

I started RAM Enterprises in 1994 as a Wood Techniques graduate from NWTC, an experienced homebuilder, and a man with a passion for this type of work. A particular passion of mine is working on older style homes where the task of keeping the original structural integrity intact adds a trilling challenge. I vowed that when I opened my own business, my client's needs would always come first. I wanted them to be involved in the projects, to have a voice. After 20 years in business, RAM Enterprises still places its customers' needs at the top of the priority list, working with clients from design to project completion and striving to provide fair pricing.

It has always been a belief of mine that the same level of care and attention to detail I would devote to my own home should be devoted to each and every project I take on. I am proud to say that I have lived up to this belief throughout the many wonderful years that RAM Enterprises has been in business. Much credit goes out to all of my loyal customers, my quality sub-contractors and suppliers, and, of course, my supportive wife, June, and our two children.
